STAT

I have just received your letter of 2 April relating to the difficulties you are experiencing in getting detailed information on your cousins outside the United States.

For our purposes I think it will be sufficient if you approximate the last known address, place of birth, age and other statistics, in view of the fact that access to many of them is now quite difficult.

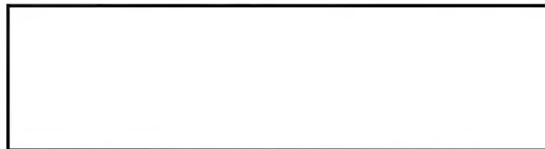

Obviously I am not in a position to discuss employment possibilities with you in terms of particulars at the moment, but we certainly will keep in mind the point you make that your interest lies in a position carrying a yearly salary well over [redacted]. In many ways, when you submit forms to us this represents an exploratory movement on your part, and in no way obligates you in the event that you do not feel that what we may have to offer is appropriate.

STAT

We shall await with interest receipt of your forms as soon as you can get them in.

With best regards.

Sincerely yours,

ST
